

PFBTM, Inc. Presents:

An Introduction to Financial Literacy

Hosted by Erin Mackey

Financial education is key to avoiding many of the challenges American families face today. Without this knowledge, people often find themselves living paycheck to paycheck, with crushing debt and lacking the savings to rise above their current circumstances.

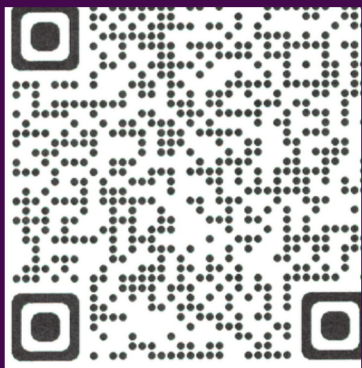

We've found the best way to push out financial education to the people who need it most is through community outreach and the people they know and trust. To effectively end financial illiteracy in this country, it will take a coalition of like-minded individuals and organizations working together.

Our Guest

Is a Certified Financial Education Instructor educating individuals & families on the importance of generational wealth and life-legacy planning.
